THE work which here sees the light was begun, in the expectation of making a compilation of much less bulk, as far back as 1896, and, excepting some periods of quiescence, when the demands of more pressing and more important work could not be put aside, has been carried on, with more or less vigor, for nearly ten years. It has, of course, grown enormously in the interim.

The prices paid for rare books at auction are not always an infallible guide to their real value, but at least in the case of books for which there is a moderately active demand, auction prices are usually admitted to be the best and most accurate accessible guide. Such being the case, our compilation "Auction Prices of Books" is sure to be a great labor-saving tool to every librarian, rare book collector, or rare book dealer. Here and there, there may be still one or two of those men who, endowed with rare mind and unimpeachable memory, are able to carry, ready at instant command, a mental record of years of experience among rare books of some class or classes, which to them is infinitely more valuable than any printed record can be. Such men did live in times past when there were fewer books and fewer book-collectors, and a few may still survive in these days of such multitudes of books both new and old. Such, if such there be, may even find occasional use for the printed record. It has not, however, been made for such, but rather for that large army of librarians and book-sellers, who are not thus gifted by nature, or who have other interests which distract and divide their attention, and for a still larger army of collectors to whom book-collecting is a pastime and recreation, and to which can be devoted only odd times and hours left from other occupations of business or enjoyment.

To all of these busy librarians, book-sellers and book-collectors, to whom time is more than money, this compilation of ours is offered, in the hope that they will find it a piece of modern labor-saving machinery which they will find constantly useful.

The four volumes here presented aim to take the place, to a considerable extent, of the eighteen volumes of the English "Book-Prices Current" and the ten volumes of "American Book-Prices Current," besides numerous catalogues of sales at auction in both

England and America before the publication of the annual records was begun.

The saving of shelf-room and the saving of expense are very great, but the saving of time and in convenience of use, will, it is certain, be much more important. Buyers and sellers of rare and valuable out of print books know how tedious and exasperating it often is when a quotation on some interesting book is sought for and the information is wanted in a hurry. Tedious, always, almost, on account of the large number of volumes now included in the annual records, exasperating, oftentimes, because the rarer the book the more time must be spent in discovering the sought for record.

Before pointing out the limitations and short-comings of the work, let us tell, in a few words, of the modus-operandi which brought the book to its present state.

First, the volumes of "Book-Prices Current" and the "American Book-Prices Current" were cut up, two volumes of each being destroyed in order to secure the records on the two sides of each leaf. These slips, each being one record, were pasted on cards, the cards being stamped with the name of the sale and the date. Then copies in duplicate of the catalogues of the principal earlier American sales such as the Rice, Menzies, Brinley, Barlow, Ives, Coburn, Johnson, Hawkins, etc., etc., were treated in the same way, and copious selections were made from a large number of minor American sales and such important English sales as those of the Daniel, Beckford (Hamilton Palace), Thorold (Syston Park), Wodhull, Sunderland, Earl of Jersey, Corser, etc., etc. As no lots are included in the English "Book-Prices Current" selling less than one pound, this has been taken as the minimum price for English sales, and five dollars as a corresponding minimum for American sales. It is not claimed that every important book sold at auction in England since the George Daniel sale, in July, 1864, or in America since the John A. Rice sale in March, 1870, has been included, as it has not been possible to examine every sale catalogue of the period, but rather only some of the more important ones, and interesting and valuable books are often offered in conjunction with items of small interest or value. As the manuscript was in large part already prepared, the record is less full for 1903 and 1904, but most important items of these years have, it is believed, been included.

After the slips cut from the annual records and the extracts from earlier catalogues were prepared, the whole mass of material was thrown into one alphabet. It was still, however, a long ways from being ready for the printer. It was then just ready for editorial condensation and selection. When it is understood that the twenty-eight volumes of the two series of Book-Prices Current comprise between them upwards of two hundred thousand records, the impossibility of including everything selling above the fixed limit of price is apparent. A selection only could be included. In making this selection it has been the aim to include every important book (selling above the limit of price) in the following broad classes:

First. Books printed in England, or books in the English language printed abroad. This is the field covered by Lowndes' "Bibliographer's Manual," but brought down to date.

Second. Americana, in its broadest sense; books about America wherever printed and in whatever language, and books printed in America. This is the field which the lamented Joseph Sabin endeavored to cover in his uncompleted "Bibliotheca Americana."

Third. Books printed in foreign languages in the various countries of Continental Europe before 1520, with a large and copious selection of important books of later date.

Within these classes many books had, of course, been sold many times, and, as auction values are most to be relied upon when a number of records can be placed side by side and compared, it was desirable, within reasonable bounds, to include enough records to answer the purpose, although unnecessary to include every record where the number at hand was large. Where a few sales only were recorded, they are generally all included. In most cases where the number of sales were numerous a selection of from ten to twenty records only are given, the preference being given to copies in the original binding, though a few inferior or less interesting copies have been included for the purpose of comparison. In the case of a few very important books, where it seemed desirable to do so an even larger number of records has been included.

It has already been stated that a considerable number of books in foreign languages printed on the Continent after 1520 have been thrown out in making up the record. This should not be taken too literally as a large number of Continental imprints of later date are included. As the English or American auction price of Continental books of the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries can hardly be taken as a very positive guide, and as the number of such books which come upon the market is small in comparison to the number published, it is not believed that their exclusion will often be felt.

Another class of books which has been generally excluded are extra illustrated books whose real value lay in the inserted matter, prints, autographs, etc. Auction records of such books are of slight value unless a very extended description of their make-up is given.

Collected series, or volumes made up of several books bound together and sold as a lot, not separately, have generally been thrown out, though here again there are many exceptions. Some few items imperfectly described have also, from necessity, been omitted.

Aside from these exclusions the record as here printed is believed to be a representative one. It must, however, be used with intelligence and caution.

Those who are familiar with the descriptions of rare books as printed in the catalogues of the various auctioneers know that, prepared though they generally are by experts, the work is done in haste and inaccuracies are numerous. Each time such a description is reprinted new errors are likely to creep in.

In the preparation of this work, after the various descriptions of the several copies of the same edition of the same book had been brought together, serious discrepancies in descriptions were oftentimes brought to light. It was then necessary to consult some of the important bibliographical works of reference in an effort to make the dissimilar descriptions agree and to find out if possible just which was correct.

The value of rare books in these days, as collectors well know, depends much upon condition, and the difficulty of giving an accurate description of each item sold is the greatest weakness in every publication of this sort. In the present work we have endeavored to mention (in a condensed statement) all important imperfections, which are pointed out in the entries in the "Book-Prices Current," or in the auctioneers' catalogues. But as the catalogues (especially those of the early sales) have sometimes failed to make mention of imperfections, the earlier records, or many of them must be used, as indeed must all auction quotations, with a grain of caution.

The limitations, too, of the record, to such lots only as bring a price in excess of a fixed minimum, again calls for constant caution in using the book. There are many books here recorded which have once, or twice, or a few times only, brought a figure which admits them to our record, though in some cases these are records of ten or twenty years ago. In most cases where our record shows a few sales of this sort, just above our minimum price, the probability is, and this may, with a very few exceptions, be taken for granted, other copies have been sold, perhaps many, but the prices brought were less than five dollars or one pound. In some cases, single records of this sort, especially of comparatively recent books, have been thrown out, and do not appear at all.

The user consulting Auction Prices of Books, with some old book in hand of which he wishes to learn the market value, will, in a multitudinous number of cases fail to find any sale whatever, of his particular book, recorded. He must not, on this account jump to the conclusion that his book is excessively rare or extremely valuable. While it is very likely to be rare (most old books are rare) it is also likely to be of small money value. In such a case he will do well to stop and ask himself why any collector should care for the book, what features recommend it as a possible treasure chest of some past age which now floats by with others which are little more than drift-wood, wreckage and rubbish of old times and hardly worth the picking up, or if picked up only to be again thrown down.

Those who know the ways and whims of book-collectors know that in his collecting he, or his class as a whole, is omnivorous. There is a buyer, somewhere, at a price, for every printed book, but it is sometimes a very difficult matter to find the buyer and the price is sometimes very low. And each collector has his own hobby and collects generally, only along certain lines which are often narrow. Books which are sought after by a large number of collectors are likely to increase in price though not rare. On the other hand rare books not sought after are often difficult to sell at any price. Supply and demand fix (in the long run) the price of old books as of all else which mankind buys and sells.

The general arrangement of the work is believed to be the most logical and simplest possible, that is in one straight dictionary alphabet, by author where the author is known, otherwise by the first important word of title, and with numerous cross references. In a few obvious cases books are entered under their subject.

The various books by the same author are arranged in alphabetical order. As the entire title is seldom given this arrangement may be sometimes a little misleading, and the arrangement in some cases may be open to criticism. Translations generally follow the originals even though out of their alphabetical place.

Different editions of the same book are arranged by date of publication, and the lists of records are generally chronological by date of sale.

The spelling of our transcript of titles is haphazard, as was that of the original catalogues. Sometimes the old spelling has been copied exactly, sometimes it has been modernized. The aim has been only to give so much of the title as would enable the user to identify the book under discussion. The work is a price list, not a bibliography.

No explanation of abbreviations is necessary, but it will not be amiss to tell just what is included in the brief description of each lot, the sale of which is recorded.

First is the binding. In some cases, notably in the earlier sales, this was not given in our source. In the case of modern books where the binding is not specified, it was probably, in most cases, cloth. In the case of many thin pamphlets of older date the probability is that the books in question were unbound.

Second is the mention of any special feature regarding the copy described, or imperfections if any were known.

Third is the name of the sale, where the name of the owner of the book sold is given, or the name of the auctioneer under whose auspices the sale was held. These auctioneers are well known, Sotheby, Puttick, Christie, and Hodgson in England and Leavitt, Bangs, Libbie, Anderson, and Henkels in America.

Fourth is the date of sale. Where the name of the sale is given, only the month and year are given. Where the auctioneer's name only is given, the day of the month is generally added, this date being the first day of the sale.

Fifth is the number in the original sale catalogue, enclosed in parenthesis. This makes it easy to refer to the original extended description in the sale catalogue.

Sixth is the price. This is the price for the lot and is given as sold, English records in pounds, shillings and pence, American records in dollars and cents.

Presentation copies where so described (in almost every case) contained autograph inscriptions by the author, though this is not generally stated. Where there was evidence that the inscription was in the hand of the recipient, or other than the author, it is so stated. The name of the person to whom the book was given, when a person of importance, is added.

The note as to the size is not to be relied upon. There is no fixed nomenclature in use by cataloguers, and as in most English sale catalogues, 8vo is made to include all 12mos, 16mos, or smaller, it has been necessary to do the same here. In the words of the catalogues, books described as Svo should be understood as being “Svo et infra.”

Pure Bibliography for itself alone, like pure Science, does not often pay. The worker in one field as in the other must make his work practical. As “applied” Science often brings reward to the worker, so this specimen of “applied” Bibliography has enough of promise in it to induce its publishers to print it. Let us hope they may have no cause to regret it.
